Why a Pink Bubble?

A very simple way to keep your emotions tied to a goal is to use color. Pink is the color associated with heart, love and emotion. The color pink is a combination of red and white. Red is the most emotionally intense color. White symbolizes purity and fullness. Combining these together to form pink gives you the emotional intensity to achieve your goal and the serenity that it will be accomplished. Surrounding your goal in pink emotionalizes it to your conscious and subconscious mind without a lot of extra effort. The bubble represents you protecting your dream from obstacles and outside forces that would cause you to give up on it. Add the motto "Give me no trouble, I'm in my Pink Bubble!" and you are telling the world to "Look out!" you are achieving this dream no matter what!

Here's how it works:

Your Pink Bubbles are your immediate and portable goal posters! Find pictures of those things that represent what you want. We recommend finding pictures for 5 areas of your life: your finances, career, family, health and spirituality. (However, you are not limited to those areas.) Cut out each picture and insert it into its own pink bubble. Then, you may either use the magnetic backing to place it on a refrigerator, mirror, etc. or you may apply the "Hook and Loop" adhesive to place it on a dashboard of your car or anywhere else you can imagine. Surrounding yourself with your goals will keep your vision and emotion high. This will strengthen the law of attraction and bring your goal to a reality more quickly.

When the goal is achieved, you can replace the picture with your next goal!
